

What is RAD?

RAD or Rental Assistance Demonstration is a federal policy implemented in 2012 by the Obama Administration. It allows for the type of federal housing assistance at a property to be changed from Section 9 (aka public housing) to Section 8 (aka the housing choice voucher program). This change also transitions properties into private management. So far, 94,000 public housing units across the country have undergone RAD conversions. More conversions are expected given drastic expansions to the program under the Trump administration.

RAD has been a component of the City's plan for public housing since 2015, but was greatly expanded in the 2nd installment of the plan, released in 2018.

Warning Signs

In 2016, the City piloted RAD at Ocean Bay Houses in Far Rockaway. Between Jan 2017 to Feb 2019, Ocean Bay had the highest rate of eviction of all public housing across the city - more than 2x the next highest rate.

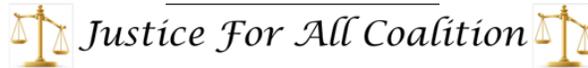

This is expected because displacement has accompanied RAD conversions across the country.

Research suggests tenants can also expect to be removed from their current apartment, relocated several times, experience difficulty with recertification after job changes and more.

What Can I Do Now?

- VISIT www.justfix.nyc to learn more about your apartment or building, respond to an eviction notice, send an official letter to your landlord about needed repairs, etc.
- TRACK needed repairs, efforts to get repairs, and responses from NYCHA reps & employees (i.e. housing assistant)
- ORGANIZE & EDUCATE with your neighbors and/or with JFAC
- SUPPORT other organizing groups by attending their events.

Our power is in our numbers.

A diverse group of community members who live and work in western Queens. Our roots, base and leadership are in the local public housing developments of Astoria, Ravenswood, Queensbridge and Woodside. We emerged in 2016 to advocate for affordable housing and good jobs in relation to a potential neighborhood rezoning in LIC; and we have continued to educate and organize around the needs of our communities ever since.

“What is RAD?!”

This is a guide to the City's plan to change public housing as we know it.

It addresses the following questions:

- 1) What is the City's plan?
- 2) What are the consequences for tenants?
- 3) What can we do about it?

If we don't come together & unify today, we will be divided and displaced tomorrow.

RAD is one part, of one part, of NextGeneration NYCHA.

The City says NextGeneration NYCHA will fix and modernize public housing across the city, and preserve it for generations to come. Through four mechanisms they say they will drum up $24 billion to repair NYCHA over the next 10 years.

- >> PACT to Preserve It
- >> Build to Preserve It
- >> Transfer to Preserve It
- >> Fix it to Preserve It

RAD is baked into one mechanism which the City has named PACT, or Permanent Affordability Community Together.

The City says PACT and RAD will repair buildings and apartments, and improve living conditions for residents.

We are not so optimistic. Instead, we see this as the end of public housing, at least as we know it now, and the beginning of the displacement of NYCHA's 400,000 residents across our city.

PACT to Preserve It

Using RAD and other mechanisms, the City will convert units to Section 8, and transfer properties to private management. 62,000 units are to be completed by 2028.

Build to Preserve It

Known as "infill", the city plans to allow private development on areas they deem "under-utilized", like parking lots and playgrounds. New dev is mostly market rate.

Transfer to Preserve It

By selling the air above NYCHA buildings to private developers - known as development or air rights - the City will generate 3.1% of the $32 billion needed.

Fix to Preserve It

The City claims NextGen will generate nearly $24 billion over the next decade. This is 75% of the $32 billion that NYCHA needs in the next 5 years.

OUR CONCERNS are based on research, reports and word of mouth which suggest:

- 1. This is de facto privatization.
- 2. Tenants rights are being violated.
- 3. RAD leads to higher rates of eviction.

Will my Rights Remain Intact?

The City says yes, and on paper, the answer is yes. There are no legal changes to the rights of NYCHA or public housing tenants, and protections are actually expanded.

However, in reality, this is not what we, JFAC, are hearing from tenants across the city. Nor is it what researchers are finding in converted buildings across the country.

Instead, there are reports of consistent and blatant violations of tenants rights - from not holding meeting with tenants about conversions until decisions are made and moving forward, to not adjusting rent to changes in income.

Is this Privatization?

This seems a lot like privatization, but the City has consistently said it is not privatization.

What is going on?

The City is clinging to the fact that they will maintain ownership of the property deed, so properties are not technically being transferred to private ownership, so this is not technically privatization. Instead, properties are being leased to private entities for 99 years. Private entities are becoming property managers, not owners.

We assert, this is de facto privatization. Though the city maintains partial, legal ownership, in effect, private managers will be in charge of properties and tenants' futures.

Do you agree? We ask you:

If the city has already been struggling to care for NYCHA properties and respond to tenants' needs, and these conversions will downsize their staff as tasks are taken over by private managers, what kind of 'ownership' and capacity to intervene can we expect the City to have in this arrangement?
